To study the seroprevalence of Chlamydia pneumoniae and Mycoplasma pneumoniae in Sweden we collected serum samples from 1029 children and a random sample of 400 adults (200 males, 200 females) from the counties of Västra Götaland, Värmland and Örebro, respectively. The subjects were between the ages of 1 and 65 years and lived in the counties of the northern (Västra Götaland and Värmland) and southern (Örebro) parts of Sweden. The sera were tested by indirect immunofluorescence and a commercial enzyme-linked immunosorbent assay (ELISA) test. The seropositivity rates were 22.7% (230/1029) and 21.4% (84/400) in the children and adults, respectively. The overall seropositivity rate was 27.7% (301/1029) in children and 25.0% (100/400) in adults. The seropositivity rates were not significantly different in the two age groups (p = 0.17 and 0.14, respectively). The seropositivity rate for C. pneumoniae was 9.3% (25/270) in children and 11.4% (23/199) in adults (p = 0.16). The seropositivity rates for M. pneumoniae were similar in children (13.8%) and adults (12.1%), and did not differ between the northern and southern parts of Sweden (p = 0.50 and 0.95, respectively). The present study shows that C. pneumoniae and M. pneumoniae are common in the Swedish population, and suggest 77a5ca646e
